THE POOR MAN'S STOCK.

A man of small means cannot afford to own any sort of stock but thoroughbreds. None but the rich can stand the losses which scrub stock entail upon their owners, and pay the enormous feed bills incidental to taking care of animals of lowly blood.

Nevada breeders who are entering upon the business of stock raising for profit should give these questions careful consideration if they expect to succeed.

Horse breeding is yearly becoming more and more profitable and the purchasers want the best.

Suppose a man of small capital wants to go into the business of raising horses for the market. Let two men start with say $5,000 each. One gathers in a band of mustangs and scrubs worth say $20 a piece, and goes on breeding them for five years. He has on hand a lot of miserable low bred animals that nobody but Indians will purchase, and the feeding of them has broken him up.

The other man pays $3,000 for a blooded stallion and purchases a few good brood mares. He has say five animals to feed where the other man has a hundred, and at the end of ten years he is selling horses for $500 a piece, and disposing of well matched teams for $1,200, with a chance of producing something that will run up into the thousands. He is bound to succeed because he has started right.

In this State the old system of cattle raising is passing away, and the thoroughbreds are fast displacing the scrubs.

When men had immense ranges for their stock they aimed at quantity; but now that pasturage area is being restricted the question of value must be carefully calculated. Suppose for example that 100 acres of land will support $5,000 worth of scrub cattle; the same land could be made to support $50,000 worth of thoroughbreds. A common calf in this State is worth $5 for veal. A thoroughbred calf is worth say on an average, $100. You must keep twenty scrub cows and feed them all Winter to get $100 for the calves in the Spring. You breed one thoroughbred through the Winter and realize as much from it as from the twenty common cows. But some will say that the milk and butter enters into the calculation. In that case take an equal number of thoroughbreds and scrubs. The scrub calves bring you $100 in the Spring all told, and the thoroughbreds $2,000, not counting the milk and butter at all. For this reason it is easy to see that thoroughbred stock is the only safe investment for a man of small means.

There are now several large firms in this State who are improving their herds by introducing new strains of the best blood to be found. These men realize that the time is not far distant when every acre of land in Nevada will be taken up, and the stock values must be put in the most compact form possible, so that every acre will be worked to the largest possible profit.

In ten years from now those who seek the best horses and cattle must look to those raised in the favorable climate of Nevada. Already Nevada beef commands a cent a pound more in San Francisco markets than Texas or California beef, and the owners of blooded race horses in the East are sending to Nevada for their hay, which gives strength and endurance to horses feeding upon it.

It is reported that Cassidy has written from Washington that no peace has been patched up between himself and Senator Fair, and that none will be as far as he is concerned. He intends to fight the Senator from the drop of the hat. Our Democratic friends should insist upon peace and harmony in the party.—Journal.

There is a row in the Democratic ranks over the making up of the slate. There is a portion who won't stand Adams again as Governor. They say he is a superannuated old politician who has fed off the party for twelve years or more, and is thoroughly played out.
